

Professional Safety Management Arriving at a School Near You?

By D Smith, ISSP President

International Society of Safety Professionals - ISSP

Click photo
for internet video

Over 3.5 million children a year are injured in our nation's schools. Sadly, most of these injuries and tragedies are preventable. The good news is, help has arrived and it's just a mouse click away. Read more...

Many schools and universities across America are receiving a failing grade when it comes to the safety of the youth they serve.

What grade would your school receive? There's only one way to find out. You'll have to ask. Ask your school if they have a trained, qualified, safety manager and comprehensive safety management system to ensure their student's safety. Most don't. That puts youth at unnecessary risk for injury or harm!

We believe all educational organizations are concerned about student and staff safety but until now a comprehensive system for managing school safety was virtually non-existent. That means drastically less effective school safety oversight; in essence a failing grade. Again, good news, the solution is at hand!

The Solution – A new school safety initiative called the “Centurion Scholastic Safety Management System” launched by Dr. Tony Kern and his team at Convergent Performance. Created with science-based principles of professional safety management proven effective in a variety of high risk industries, the Centurion program has been customized for the needs of educational organizations from pre-school to the nation's largest universities.

The International Society of Safety Professionals is proud to sponsor, endorse, and promote the new Centurion Scholastic Safety Management System. We know trained and qualified safety managers using this comprehensive safety management system translates to enhanced safety in America's schools. In fact, Safety Managers who complete the 40 hour curriculum included in the Centurion program will receive a Certificate of Competency directly from the International Society of Safety Professionals!

Your child's safety cannot be overlooked - Parents and schools must take action now!

Ask your school to look into the Centurion Scholastic Safety Management System at: www.convergentperformance.com. Our youth deserve nothing less.

International Society of Safety Professionals – ISSP

Is a US registered Non Profit organization dedicated to improving safety in all communities of practice

www.isspros.org

